Reflection from A Parishioner

By Ron Knapp

“Today you will be with me in Paradise.”

The Scriptures for the liturgical year conclude with this statement by Jesus to the “good thief” in Luke’s gospel. In celebrating today’s feast, The Solemnity of Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe, we are poised to enter Advent.

Jesus, from the Cross, declares to all of us who seek to follow him: Today—right now, already—you are with me in Paradise. What do we make of this pledge of joyful union, the fullness of life?

Paradise ... could we experience it here and now? Heaven on Earth, beyond the cliché? Or is it that we spend our mortal lives with our less-than-optimal discipleship and love—consoled that it gets greater later?

The classic Catholic understanding of this mystery is that Jesus ushers in the Reign (Kingdom) of God—yet, in human history, it is still to reach its fullness in God’s providence. The Garden, Paradise ... has been lost but is also promised in hope to be restored. In our experience of anguish, sorrow, and incompleteness in this life, we grapple with this key mystery, the conundrum of Jesus Christ, King of the Universe as “already but not yet,” still in process, unfolding.

So here you and I find ourselves, in the meantime, acknowledging injustice and violence and broken hearts in our midst, while also striving to live the faith-claim Jesus is Lord!

Henri Nouwen provides a wise perspective for this “meantime” and beyond: I am a human being who was loved by God before I was born and whom God will love after I die. This brief lifetime is my opportunity to receive love, deepen love, grow in love, and give love. When I die love continues to be active, and from full communion with God I am present by love to those I leave behind.

As I dwell with today’s gospel, Jesus’s assertion strikes me as a mantra, a phrase to hold close, to return to throughout this week or over a lifetime, to orient my mind and heart in faith—a reassurance to live by: “Today [on through eternity] you will be with me in Paradise.”

PRAY FOR THE DECEASED

With the hope of the Resurrection, we ask that you remember in your prayers:

Joan Rice

May she and all the departed share in the peace and joy of God’s presence forever.

Family Liturgy this Sunday, November 20

We are celebrating Family Mass again this Sunday at the 10:30 liturgy. Our young people and their families will serve as ushers, lectors, cross-bearer and gift-bearers. Our Level I atrium children will have a special role when we sing the Gospel Alleluia. Thank-you to all involved for sharing your gifts with us!

Family Christmas Eve Children's Choir and Tableau

We are inviting young instrumentalists and vocalists to be a part of our Children's Choir for the Christmas Eve Family Mass!

The rehearsals for this group will be on:

- Sunday, December 4, 12:00-1:30, in the church
- Sunday, December 11, 12-1:30, in the church
- Saturday, December 17, 9-12:30, in the church

We do ask that instrumentalists, at a minimum, be in their second year of school ensemble instruction, as they will be reading and learning the music outside of rehearsal time. Please let us know as soon as you can if your child is interested; we'll need to hear from all musicians by Tuesday, November 29. If your child would like to participate in the choir, please email Julie (Julie@sfxstl.org).

Our Christmas Eve tableau will also be a part of the Family Mass. This is a simple visual of the Gospel narrative of Jesus' birth. We are seeking angels, shepherds, and a few animals; costumes are provided. There will be two brief rehearsals after mass on December 11 and December 18. Please email Jennifer (jennifer@sfxstl.org) if your child would like to participate.

Antiracism at College Church

At College Church, antiracism is an expression of our recognition that all are created in the image of God. As such, we respond—personally and collectively—to the call to identify, and to actively challenge, structures and systems that devalue people on the basis of race, and to practice restoration in the pursuit of justice.

Celebrating Black Catholic History Month at College Church

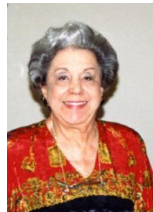

November is Black Catholic History Month. It was instituted by the National Black Clergy Caucus in 1990. For the last several years, our parish has participated in this celebration by highlighting the gifts and contributions of Black Catholics. We recognize the many black saints and holy people who are part of our Catholic heritage as well as the current Catholic community in St. Louis. We have shared their stories by displaying informational posters, articles in the bulletin, and video interviews.

This year our focus will be to tell the stories of those individuals whose lives are directly connected to our own parish history but have remained less well known. During the month of November posters will be displayed in church and these important stories will be included in our weekly bulletin. In addition, the final presentation of Our Parish Racial History on November 20th will provide further insight into the important role played by members of the black community in achieving greater equity and justice in our city, in the St. Louis Archdiocese, at St. Louis University, and in our own parish.

Jane Gordon Kaiser

Jane Aileen Gordon Kaiser was an African American Catholic known for her determined effort to integrate Catholic schools in St. Louis. Born on December 27, 1912, Kaiser was a descendant of Thomas Jefferson and an enslaved woman, Sally Hemings, and was not, by her appearance readily identifiable as black. In fact, in an early effort to desegregate St. Louis University, Kaiser had been invited to seek enrollment to the institution by concealing her identity as a black person, which she was unwilling to do. Kaiser's family had been Catholic for five generations, and one of her ancestors had helped to build St. Thomas of Aquin Catholic Church in south St. Louis, where she had been a parishioner since birth. She studied at Stowe Teacher's College and at the University of Southern California and, upon returning to St. Louis, was employed as a teacher. Kaiser and her husband Samuel had two boys, Arthur and James.

As her oldest son approached school age, Kaiser recalled the pastor asking her when the child, whom he had baptized, would be ready to enroll in the parish school. However, in 1944, just as her son attained that age, a new pastor was installed. When Kaiser sought admission to the school for the boy, the pastor advised her that he would first need to consult the parish council, and he suggested that, instead, she should enroll her son at St. Malachy, a parish in the Mill Creek Valley neighborhood, which had been placed in care of the Jesuits in 1941 and which Black Catholics had begun to attend. Kaiser remembered feeling both insulted and angry. When the parish council denied her son's admission, and after enlisting the aid of two Jesuits known for their racial justice advocacy, Frs. John Markoe and Claude Heithaus, she decided to seek a visit with Archbishop John Glennon. The meeting with Glennon was contentious, with the archbishop defending the segregation of Catholic institutions as consistent with St. Louis customs and practices.

Failing to persuade Glennon, Kaiser appealed to the Vatican's apostolic delegate to the United States, offering to share with him, in full detail, the racism she and her family were experiencing. In response to this appeal, Glennon was required to report on the ways in which the Catholic Church in St. Louis was ministering to African Americans, though he continued to justify his inaction regarding desegregation. Not until 1947, and the arrival of Archbishop Joseph Elmer Ritter would Catholic parishes and schools be required to integrate, but Jane Kaiser's insistence that her Church act justly would fuel the momentum leading to that result. Kaiser died in 2002.

Native American Heritage Month

America is a vast land of many cultures dating back thousands of years to its original inhabitants. The history and heritage of Native Americans, Alaska Natives, Native Hawaiians, and Island communities have been recognized and celebrated since August 3, 1990, when President George H. W. Bush declared the month of November as National American Indian Heritage Month—now known as Native American Heritage Month. It is observed to call attention to the culture, traditions, and achievements of the nation's original inhabitants and of their descendants. This month is also an opportunity to reexamine the relationship between Native American peoples and those who later came to occupy this land. Our country and our church continue to reckon with the painful truth of harm inflicted on indigenous people—both historically and in our present day—and to identify a path toward truth, reconciliation, and healing. One practice that has been recognized as a first step in that direction is known as a land acknowledgment. This is a statement that recognizes and respects indigenous peoples as traditional stewards of the land. It is an expression of gratitude and appreciation to those on whose territory we stand. Such statements may be proclaimed at the beginning of public gatherings and serve to raise awareness—countering the erasure of native cultures. By itself, acknowledgment is a small gesture but may provide movement toward a just and more equitable relationship.

We recognize that the land that we know as St. Louis is the ancestral home of the Osage, Miami, Cahokia, Kaskaskia, Michigamea, Moingwena, Sioux, Peoria, Haudenosaunee (also called Iroquois) people, as well as the Illini Confederacy. The state of Missouri has been home to the Otos, Mississippian, Cherokee, Delaware, Kickapoo, Sac, Fox, and Shawnee, in some cases as the result of forced removal from their traditional lands in other parts of the country. In spite of restrictive government policies and involuntary relocations, approximately 80,000 American Indians live in Missouri today.

For more information about land acknowledgments and indigenous people in this area, you may consult the following sources: The United States Department of Arts and Cultures usdac.us/nativeland, Native Land native-land.ca, and the Kathryn M. Buder Center for American Indian Studies sites.wustl.edu/budercenter/buder-center-research/.

Advent Days of Prayer

This December, White House Retreat will be hosting 6 single-day events. Space is limited and these events do fill quickly.

December 5, 6, 7 (directed by Fr. Jeff Harrison, SJ)

December 12, 13, 14 (directed by Fr. Anthony Wieck, SJ)

The cost is $35 per person (per event) and registration is taken on a first-come first-served basis.

Call 314-416-6400 to register and pay by phone. You can also mail a check to 7400 Christopher Dr. St. Louis, 63129, or register online at <https://whitehouseretreat.org/day-of-prayer>. Please be sure to include a note indicating which day you would like to attend and the names of those you are registering.

Thanksgiving Day Eucharist

November 24 is our American holiday, Thanksgiving. Our grateful ancestors paused from all the challenges of life to give thanks for all their blessings and opportunities. The Eucharistic liturgy is also our Catholic way of giving thanks. We recall all that God has done for us and ask God to continue to bless us. As you plan your Thanksgiving day, please consider sharing in the Thanksgiving Day Eucharist at College Church. There will be one mass that morning at 9:00 am.

Advent Materials

The season of Advent begins next Sunday, Nov 27. Following the Sunday morning masses, Advent reflection booklets, books, and calendars are available in the ballroom. The Daybreaks series features a single page reflection for each day of the season. The writings of various authors, including John Kavanaugh, SJ, Sr. Dianne Bergant, Henri Nouwen, Ronald Rolheiser, are featured. There are similar booklets by other authors including Pope Francis with some focusing on families and others for seniors. The Little Blue Book is another popular Advent booklet with a scripture reflection and an introduction to a person or a practice.

Another option are the “Advent and Christmas with” books that compile writings from authors for a daily reflection. Writings come from Pope Francis, St Francis of Assisi, Thomas Merton, and others. Fr. Dan Daly, SJ, one of our regular celebrants, has a book - Jesus and the Barbecued Breakfast Fish. It offers insights and starting points for reflection on Gospel passages.

Advent candles are available along with CDs with recordings of Fr. John Kavanaugh’s homilies. Items may be reserved for pickup on other days when the parish office is open. Come down to the ballroom and find something to inspire you during the coming weeks of Advent. To request an item for pickup, email Joe Milner at Joe@sfxstl.org.

Mass of Remembrance and Commemorating the Faithful Departed Through November

Each year, the church remembers all who have died and gone before us during the month of November. While there is a book to remember the departed at the shrine of St. Joseph throughout the year, it has been moved to near the baptismal font this weekend, to make it more prominent and easier to inscribe the names of your loved ones as you enter or depart from the church. You are invited to write the names of any of your family and friends who have died, particularly those who have died during the past year. This month, the book will be brought forward and placed near the altar. The names of those listed in the book will be remembered in our prayers at the weekend liturgies. Please take a moment to inscribe these names today in our parish book of remembrance.

You are also invited to bring a small, framed photo of your loved one or a small memento to be placed in a shrine in the church for the month of November as a remembrance for the whole parish. Please do not leave anything that is irreplaceable. A photocopy of the photo or memento could be used. The items may be retrieved at the end of November.

Here are parishioners and family members of parishioners we are remembering this November (if we are forgetting anyone, please let us know by emailing angela@sfxstl.org, and we will include them in the coming weeks):

Widows and Widowers

The next meeting of Widows and Widowers will be on Sunday, November 27, at 9:15 a.m. in the break room on the first floor of the Parish Center. Interested in attending? Contact Val Rutterer at vrutterer@gmail.com or 314-393-8986 for questions or more information.

An Evening of Advent Reflection

Come and prepare your heart for Advent on December 1, from 6:30-8:30 pm. Step away from the busy pace of the season for an evening of quiet reflection, led by parishioner and CGS catechist Alicia Timko. We'll begin with dinner in the ballroom, followed by a presentation and time for personal and group reflection. Hands-on materials will be offered to aid our reflection. Please contact Julie for any questions and to RSVP at julie@sfxstl.org.

Do you have a passion for eco-justice? Sacred Water: Oceans & Ecosystems is a small group program designed by JustFaith Ministries that applies the principles of Catholic Social Teaching to current situations. This series guides groups in discerning how they can better care for Earth's waters, as well as the creatures and communities who live around them. The 9-week virtual program will begin on January 10 and run through March 14. It is being facilitated by Sister Carolyn McWatters and Sister Lillian Jordan, Sisters of Mercy in Belmont, NC.. The sessions are on Tuesday evenings from 7:00-9:00 pm. Cost is on a sliding scale and scholarships are available. If you'd like more info, feel free to call Sister Carolyn at 314-258-3636 or email her at cmcwatters@sistersofmercy.org.
