Reflection on Toward Liberation

By Lisa Burks

Earlier this summer, members of our parish, including myself, participated in a 5-week workshop, Toward Liberation, presented by Crossroads Antiracism Organizing and Training. It is part of preparing for a Racial Equity Review of College Church. This instruction presented historical and conceptual information that will help us better understand racism's structure and function. For hours each week, we read, we researched, we listened, we shared with one another, and we reflected on our experiences. Part of our learning described how the identity of whiteness was created so that the labor, the land, and the intellect of people of African, Indigenous, Asian, Latinx, and Arab heritage could be exploited. That is an uncomfortable truth to hear. Whiteness is one of the identities I carry in the world. I did not choose it. I did not consciously seek out advantages that this identity affords. I have tried to convince myself that I am not a part of the systemic injustice that continues to evolve from slavery and genocide, and that I do not and have not benefitted in any way. I looked for comfort in my equity work in schools. I think my unconscious rationale was that, if I helped children and families of color to access some of the benefits of whiteness, I could be one of the "good white people," even as I failed to confront the barriers that made such support necessary.

As I learned through the workshop experience, this is one stage in the development of a white antiracist identity. To grow, I must continue to recognize and accept the ways my life has been, and continues to be, impacted by the principles and practices of white dominant culture. During the workshop, I encountered a painful example of a racist practice that affected my life, even if I was not aware of it at the time. In 1967 my parents bought a small piece of property that was part of a recreational development just outside St. Louis County. That tiny lot allowed us to use the lake for recreation. We have many family memories of swimming and fishing in the summer and ice skating in the winter. When we recently sold the property, I was troubled to see a racially restrictive agreement among the real estate documents. There it was—right in between plumbing requirements and permission to lease the property—"No sale, conveyance, lease or renting shall be made to any person not a full blooded Caucasian." I knew the history of these practices, but now it is personal. I recognize this restriction was just one of the barriers that kept the experiences of my youth confined to white spaces. That reinforced my understanding that whiteness was "normal." Confronting this part of my story makes it harder to ignore my personal entanglement with racism, and it deepens my desire to be free of it—for all people to find liberation.

It is with these experiences in mind that I reflect on today's Gospel. Through these parables, I think Jesus is challenging the system that maintained a clear social hierarchy and that viewed relationships as opportunity to advantage one's own status and esteem. He is offering us a new way of being with one another where all are authentically welcomed and find belonging. As we move forward with the equity review and antiracism work in our parish, I pray that we will recognize the barriers that prevent us from fully celebrating all sisters and brothers in our shared community.

August 21, 2022

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

Please let me start by thanking you for your thoughtful consideration and honest feedback to our various All Things New surveys, outreach and strategic planning endeavors. Your prayers and input have been most valuable to this effort.

As I write, I'm reflecting on something the Holy Father said several years ago that remains true and especially relevant to us in the Archdiocese of St. Louis. Pope Francis said "we are not living an era of change, but a change of era." The All Things New pastoral planning process is going to bring historic change to the Archdiocese of St. Louis. We know that our current model is not sustainable. As we start to look at potential plans for parishes, ministries and schools to ensure a vibrant presence and future for the Archdiocese, I'd like to update you as to where we are in the process.

In this next phase, we will begin a conversation with our archdiocesan priests and parishioners to discuss draft models, which are based on demographics, sacramental data and feedback received from the Disciple Maker Index survey and other consultative bodies. This past Friday, we presented the information we gathered and preliminary proposals for parishes to our priests to gather their feedback. Then, over the next several months, we will share updated proposals in a series of listening sessions hosted at each parish to hear your thoughts about the proposed models. Please let me remind you that these parish models are preliminary and will be adjusted based on your feedback. Specific information regarding schools will be released later.

Our goal is to implement a vision for evangelization that is accessible to all and empowers every Catholic to spread the Gospel message – today and for generations to come.

This is our primary focus as Catholics, and so I urge you all to bear this in mind as we take the next steps. We are called to collaborate as the Catholic Church rather than compete as many individual churches. I encourage you to engage with us during our listening sessions with an open heart and mind, as we continue to discern where the Lord is leading us. We will continue to update you through allthingsnew.archstl.org. May God bless you, your family and your parish community.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Most Reverend Mitchell T. Rozanski
Archbishop of St. Louis

What is All Things New?

We all know that the Church of today is not the same that it was 50, 100 or 150+ years ago, and yet we are still functioning in many ways out of the same mode of evangelization. We have inherited a great treasure of Catholic institutions from previous generations, but as the Catholic population and society have shifted over the past several decades, they are no longer as effective or sustainable as they once were.

We are closer now to 2050 than to 1950. We need to ask ourselves what our parishes, ministries and institutions need to look like in order to effectively share the faith in a way that is suitable and sustainable for our children and generations to come.

All Things New is evaluating the effectiveness of the Church in St. Louis in proclaiming the Gospel and identifying opportunities for improvement and renewal within all parishes, schools and curia offices and agencies.

Why is the Archdiocese of St. Louis making these changes now?

- Our Catholic population continues to decline and age.
- Our priests are aging and as a result, their number is declining.
- Mass attendance and sacramental participation continue to decline.
- Fewer children attend Catholic Schools and Religious Education (PSR).
- Our resources are finite and need to be realigned.

On August 19, 2022, Archbishop Rozanski met with Archdiocesan priests. What was shared?

The Archbishop and Fr. Chris Martin, Vicar for Strategic Planning, shared the next phase of All Things New with archdiocesan priests, which included proposed parish models based on our Planning Areas.

A Planning Area is a number of parishes and schools in a geographic region which will be considered together to develop proposed structural options for the future. There are 15 planning areas in the Archdiocese.

They saw several options as to how parishes in their specific Planning Area could be structured and collaborate in the future. Each option is termed a “model.”

The models are “unfinished” because they need your insight and feedback.

What’s next?

Archdiocesan priests will evaluate the Planning Areas and Models and offer feedback. Their feedback will be incorporated into the models. Then, the updated Planning Areas and Models will be shared at every parish in listening sessions. The purpose of the listening sessions is to gather your input on these proposed options that are specific to your parish so that over the next year a recommendation can be presented to Archbishop Rozanski for his discernment.

Modelled parishes are generally much larger than current parishes. On average, parishes are 2 to 2.5 x larger.

What happens after the Listening Sessions?

All parishioners across the Archdiocese will have an opportunity to provide feedback through an open-ended survey about their parish's model options after the listening sessions. This feedback will be incorporated into revised models which will be refined with input from the pastors and key parish leaders throughout the winter 2022 and into 2023. Once a final recommended grouping of parishes and schools is determined, the model will also include the following:

- Recommendations concerning buildings to be used by the merged parish
- The number of priests initially assigned
- Suggested evangelization and ministry strategies

What is the timeline for this?

While decisions will be made in spring 2023, implementation will not begin until fall 2023 and will extend through 2026. Implementation will occur in a phased approach over time to allow for orderly planning and transition at the local level, led by your pastor and supported by the Archdiocese.

What can we as local Catholics do now?

You are encouraged to attend your parish's listening sessions with open hearts and minds. Continue to attend Mass, participate in the Sacraments and pray for the power of the Holy Spirit to pour out upon the Church of St. Louis, to grant us the gift of true discernment, so we may do His will in all things.

Welcome to all of our new (and returning) students!

We really look forward to getting to know you and want you to be an important part of this community. Please sign up for our email list and/or register with the parish at sfxstl.org/parishioner-registration. NOTA BENE

Fr. Dan Farewell

Dear College Church,

Shakespeare claimed, Parting is such sweet sorrow. I get it. It is with sadness that I finish my time with you. Yet, I relish and delight in all we have shared. Sweet sorrow indeed.

St. Francis Xavier (College) Church has been part of me since my days as a SLU undergrad. I was ordained here, celebrated my first Mass here and took my Jesuit final vows in this church. Now, I conclude serving you as pastor over the past ten years. What a great gift.

What will I miss most about College Church? That is easy: the people. I cannot say enough about the incredible staff we have. You know they are dedicated, highly competent, and generous. They are also incredibly fun to work with. We have laughed a lot. The parish leadership has also provided great support and guidance. Together we have tried to be good stewards of SFX and promote the mission of this community. It has been a tremendous gift to recognize the Holy Spirit working through so many talented folks.

I will miss the multitude of ministries that make up life here. Weddings, baptisms, funerals, confessions, and various activities have kept me busy. They have enabled me to share deeply in your moments of both joys and sorrows. It is sacred privilege to be part of the sufferings, loss, happiness, and triumphs of your lives. Thank you.

I am most grateful for your gift of faith and inspiration that has been part of this amazing experience. I appreciate all you have done to make me a better Christian, Jesuit, and priest. You have inspired, encouraged, and walked with me over these years. Our faith reminds us that we witness to God's Kingdom as the one body of Christ. The good we have done has been done together.

St. Paul wrote to the Philippians, I thank my God every time I remember you, praying with joy in my every prayer for all of you. His prayer is mine, too. Know that you remain in my heart.

God Bless,
Fr. Dan

(Editor's note: Fr. Dan will no longer use his frdan@sfxstl.org email; please use dwhite@jesuits.org to stay in touch. And don't forget our going away party/fundraiser brunch November 13: A Decade of Dan!)

Antiracism at College Church

At College Church, antiracism is an expression of our recognition that all are created in the image of God. As such, we respond—personally and collectively—to the call to identify, and to actively challenge, structures and systems that devalue people on the basis of race, and to practice restoration in the pursuit of justice.

A sixth century portrait of St. Augustine

St. Augustine of Hippo, Doctor of the Church

Today is the feast of St. Augustine, who is often extolled as the greatest of the Church Fathers. Born in 354, in Thagaste, a small North African town, Augustine was believed to be of Berber origin—the indigenous people of the area encompassing modern-day Morocco, Algeria, and Tunisia. His mother, Monica, was a devout Christian, but his father, Patricius, worshipped multiple deities and converted to Christianity only on his deathbed.

At the age of 17, Augustine went to Carthage to study rhetoric and philosophy. There he set aside his mother's religion and immersed himself in a profligate lifestyle, much to Monica's anguish. He also found himself drawn to Manichaeism, a dualistic religious movement founded in Persia. By 370, Augustine had become a professor of rhetoric, teaching in Thagaste and Carthage, briefly in Rome, and later in Milan. It was there that he met and was influenced by St. Ambrose, the Bishop of Milan. One day, after listening to a sermon of Ambrose, Augustine thought he heard a child's voice saying, "Take up and read." Nearby was a copy of the New Testament, which he picked up, turned to the letters of St. Paul, and read: "Not in reveling and drunkenness, not in lust and wantonness, not in quarrels and rivalries. Rather, arm yourselves with the Lord Jesus Christ, spend no more thought on nature and nature's appetites" (Romans 13:13-14).

Augustine's spiritual conversion thus began. He resigned his professorship and, at the age of 33, was baptized by St. Ambrose. He returned to his family home in Africa, where he eventually began, with a group of friends, to lead a monastic life, later writing a rule for the continued guidance of the monastic community. At the age of 36, he became a priest, and five years later, was ordained bishop of Hippo. Augustine was renowned for his sermons and teaching and for having developed his own approach to philosophy and theology. He left a tremendous catalogue of work, the best-known of which are considered classics of Western literature: Confessions, regarded by many as the first autobiography in the West, and City of God. He was recognized as a Doctor of the Church—meaning his doctrinal works have special authority—in 1298 by Pope Boniface VIII. As has been noted by historian Diarmaid MacCulloch: "Augustine's impact on Western Christian thought can hardly be overstated."

What is Next for Gloria Purvis?

"God puts things together when you're faithful to him and not looking for certain things. Sometimes He's like: 'I'm going to use you.'" This is the theme Gloria Purvis revisits when she describes the journey she has taken from a corporate career in finance to her current roles as host of the weekly Gloria Purvis Podcast (<https://www.americamagazine.org/gloria-purvis-podcast>), and as the inaugural Pastoral Fellow for the University of Notre Dame's Office of Life and Human Dignity at the McGrath Institute for Church Life. In an interview with Alessandra Harris in the Black Catholic Messenger (<https://www.blackcatholicmessenger.com/>), Gloria relates some of the opportunities she discovered when she remained open to what God had planned for her next. Initially known for her pro-life advocacy and co-host of an international Catholic radio program Morning Glory, she gained prominence as a Catholic voice against racism. She discussed police brutality, racial violence, economic and other systemic inequities as pro-life issues, emphasizing the message of the Gospel and church teaching that directs us to treat all people as children of God. When the radio show was abruptly cancelled, Gloria discovered new ways to engage the community and the church in conversations about faith, dignity, and racial justice.

Leaning on and sharing her Catholic faith, as well as her identity and experience as an African American woman, Gloria Purvis continues to support and advocate for the sanctity and dignity of all human life through her published articles, video presentations, speaking engagements, board memberships, as well as her current podcast. A production of America Media, The Gloria Purvis Podcast covers a variety of events and topics relevant in the church and society.
